Dr. Celia Laur

Improving nutrition care in Canadian hospitals

Presenter:

Celia Laur, PhD(c), MSc, FHEA,
Postdoctoral Research Fellow, WIHV
Women's College Hospital

Bio: Celia Laur is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Women's College Research Institute in Toronto working with Dr Noah Ivers. She will (very!) soon defend her PhD at the University of Waterloo, under the supervision of Professor Heather Keller. Celia's PhD was a key component within the More-2-Eat project. To apply the lessons learned to another context, her PhD also explored how Family Health Teams started to set up nutrition screening.

Celia is a member of the UK Need for Nutrition Education/ Innovation Programme (NNEdPro), and lead of their Global Innovation Panel since 2014. NNEdPro aims to advance and implement nutrition knowledge to improve health, well-being and society. For her work with the Women's College Research Institute, Celia is involved in a series of qualitative projects exploring physicians' antibiotic and opioid prescribing practices in Ontario in an effort to inform upcoming interventions and behaviour change in practice. Celia has a keen interest in implementation science/practice, quality improvement, and how to sustain and spread successful changes within various healthcare settings and across topic areas.
